DETAILED ACTION

1. The rejection given in section 2 of the detailed portion of the office action mailed 9/5/2008 is withdrawn in view of applicant's arguments 05 March 2009. A new rejection is given below.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 18-34 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Westre et al. (U.S. 6,114,050) in view of Behr et al. (U.S. 6,428,905 B1).

Westre et al. teaches a multiple metal layer laminate with adhesive inner layers between the metal layers (abstract). The reference teaches reduction in the number of inner metal layers with a resulting decrease in the laminate thickness for areas that do not need to be reinforced with the central metal layers (Figure 5, col. 13, lines 5-25). Behr et al. teaches that it is known to reinforce outer metal layers by the use of a perforated central metal layer with a reduction in thickness of the total laminate at the openings in the central metal layer (col. 1, lines 15-30). The instant invention claims outer metal layers and a central inner metal layer with openings and reduced thickness of the laminate at the openings. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to form the central metal layers of Westre et al. with openings in the areas that do not need reinforcement in view of the teachings of Behr et al. Variation in the pattern of the openings and the number of inner metal layers would depend on the specific laminate reinforcement needed for a given application and would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art.

4. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 18-34 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

5. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to William P. Watkins III whose telephone number is 571-272-1503.
